PURE SAFETY GROUP RECALLS GUARDIAN LEADING EDGE SRLS WITH STAINLESS STEEL OR WEB LIFELINE

Limited part numbers affected, immediate replacements available

HOUSTON (Dec. 26, 2019) – Pure Safety Group (PSG) has released an immediate recall and stop-use on Guardian Fall Protection Self-Retracting Lifelines for leading edge applications (SRL-LE) that utilize a stainless-steel or web lifeline. A small number of SRLs with stainless steel or web lifelines were identified as non-compliant with ANSI Z359.14-14 and must immediately be removed from service. Under certain conditions, the stainless-steel or web lifeline may not perform to industry standards in leading edge applications and could result in serious bodily injury or death. There have been no reported accidents or injuries related to this recall. All affected SRLs with stainless steel or web lifelines must be immediately returned to PSG for replacement. Replacements will be made with an equivalent model at no charge.

This recall affects the following products, including any custom parts associated with these products:

| Recalled Part | Recalled Part Description |
|---------------|--|
| 10931 | Halo (formerly Edge) Series w/ 20' Stainless Steel cable |
| 10933 | Halo (formerly Edge) Series w/ 25' Stainless Steel cable |
| 10936 | Halo (formerly Edge) Series w/ 30' Stainless Steel cable |
| 10979 | Diablo (formerly Daytona) w/ 50' Stainless Steel cable |
| 10980 | Diablo (formerly Daytona) w/ 65' Stainless Steel cable |
| 10908 | Halo Series w/20' Web Retractable Lifeline with Boot cover |

Pure Safety Group is dedicated to providing workers at height with the safest and most reliable fall protection solutions possible. PSG and its family of brands will continue to expand its existing offering of leading edge compliant SRLs.
